Prospect High School teacher receives Beginning Teacher Award

by Rain Stites

She is young with a rather bubbly personality.

The bell pierced through the classroom’s intercom speaker and in poured her students. It was early in the day, but as the teenagers made their way to their seats, Erin Hinshaw greeted them with an amplified and cheerful ‘good morning!’

“I like to laugh and make jokes,” Hinshaw said of her demeanor in the classroom. “I feel like I’ve had a lot of luck and success with that with building rapport and just treating (my students) like people first.”

This year marks Hinshaw’s third year as a full-time teacher.

The English teacher at Prospect High School received the Beginning Teacher Award in early December in recognition by the Gamma Omega chapter of the Delta Kappa Gamma International Society for Key Women Educators.

According to its official website, the organization advocates professional and personal growth of women educators by providing a number of services and resources aimed to encourage women in this field of work.

Roberta Lynch, an English teacher at Prospect High School, described Hinshaw as organized, optimistic, eager and knowledgeable. She was the one who nominated Hinshaw for the award.

“As a teacher and a parent, I often think about who I would have wanted my own son to have as a teacher ... If my son had been Erin’s student, I would know that he would improve greatly in reading, speaking and writing while a member of her class,” Lynch wrote in a letter of recommendation.

In the letter, Lynch continued to describe why Hinshaw deserves this type of recognition.

“Students love Erin, not because she’s easy or friendly with them, but because she has high expectations, well-prepared lesson plans, and a strong work ethic,” Lynch wrote.

This type of recognition from fellow teachers and her students, Hinshaw said, makes her want to cry tears of joy.

“It was really kind of humbling to see how my experienced colleagues perceive me and my teaching,” Hinshaw said.

Hinshaw continued to describe how this reminded her why she decided to follow this profession.

“It gave me a chance to reflect on why I went into teaching and to, you know, kind of just take a step back and realize that I am making a difference even if it’s one kid,” Hinshaw said. “I’m making a difference. I’m living the dream I’ve always wanted to live.”

Since childhood, Hinshaw has known teaching was her calling. She reminisced of the times playing pretend school in her room with her cousins and friends, noting she always assumed the role of teacher.

“I always loved the idea. I think when I was growing up, I liked the idea of being in charge,” she said.

Leapin’ Lizards – Annie in San Jose!

by Jennifer Packard

Broadway San Jose’s touring production of Annie opened to a sold out house on Friday, January 6, at San Jose Center for the Performing Arts. This revival brought Bay Area families out by the troves. The audience was impacted with first time professional theater goers. Booster seats lined the audience, and young smiles filled the hearts of those who surrounded them. The theatre was flooded with an unparalleled excitement for this children’s theatrical piece.

Gilgamesh Taggett had the stand out performance, as New York’s Billionaire Oliver Warbucks. Taggett was engaging. He coupled nicely with Jeffrey B. Duncan, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in numerous scenes and musical numbers. They both gave memorable performances.

Orphan Annie, Tori Bates, was the stereotypical, nasal singing belter. Bates lacked depth in her character and vocal intonation. She just sang loud. Her crew of orphans looked the part, and offered the audience a crowd pleaser with “You’re Never Fully Dressed Without a Smile.” This was the most energetic number of the production, and these six young ladies gave it their all.

Choreography was sharp, clean, and incredibly simple.

Choreographer Liz Gennaro should have challenged the performers, creating more interesting and vibrant musical numbers for the adult audience.

Martin Charnin definitely directed this production for a young audience, which bothered me at first; I wanted more but then when I glanced around the theatre and noticed how mesmerized a new generation of theatre-goers was by Annie, my disappointment dissipated.

This touring production of Annie has departed San Jose for Palm Desert, but Broadway San Jose will continue to bring popular Broadway musicals to downtown San Jose. Next up, the 2013 Tony Award-winning Best Musical Kinky Boots (January 24-29), then Tony Award-winning hit Matilda the Musical (March 7-12), followed by The Bodyguard, made popular by the smash film starring Whitney Houston and Kevin Costner, and finally Cabaret (June 6-11).

For tickets to the upcoming productions: broadwaysanjose.com or phone 866-395-2929. And if at least three of these shows interest you and your family, look into getting a FlexPass to save money and enjoy the benefits of being a season ticket holder!

Planning Commission Approves Two Permits

by Judith Steinle

On January 10, the Planning Commission examined a business permit renewal, and a permit application for the building of a new house.

1300 Dell Ave.: The owner of Sedusa Studios, a fitness studio, had applied for an extension of her Conditional Use Permit (CUP). This business is located in an area zoned for manufacturing, and for research and development businesses. Other types of business, such as this fitness studio, are also allowed to operate in this zone, with a five-year maximum CUP. The purpose of this restriction is to allow the city to re-evaluate the land use of the zone, to make sure that the viability of the area isn’t being hampered by the presence of such a business. It also allows the city an opportunity to evaluate any public health, safety, or nuisance concerns the business might be causing.

Most of the studio’s business takes place in the evening, which allows for shared parking with other businesses in the same building, which operate during the day. It was also brought up that in the last five years, there have been no visits from police, and no complaints of any sort for noise, or for health or safety.

The business has operated in that location since 2010.

The Commission approved the five-year CUP extension.

910 Emory Ave.: The owner of this property had applied to remove the existing 2,206-square-foot house, and build a 3,754-square-foot house. The house would be one story, with an attached two-car garage. The lot is 19,078 square feet.

To build the new house, the owner would need to remove five small trees, two of which are of a protected species.

The Commission approved this permit.

Teaching Children About Service by Daris Howard

A friend of mine, Richard, saw me and laughed. “Is this the new you?”

I tried to act innocent. “What do you mean?”

He laughed again. “Your eyebrows are missing, as is most of your hair. And you’re redder than a lobster.”

I sighed as I thought about how I came to be in my current state. I always looked for chances to teach my children about community service, so when it was announced that there was a need for a volunteer to help maintain the church furnace, I was quick to sign up.

Our old church had a coal furnace. A person had to make sure that the coal was raked down to cover the auger that fed the fire, and also had to clean out all of the old clinkers.

A few days before it was my turn to take over, I met Gary at the church. He was the man who was currently doing it, and I wanted to go through the routine so I could make sure I knew where all of the switches were and learn any other details. It had been a long time since I had removed clinkers from a furnace.

Clinkers are the debris that is left after coal is burned. They look like strangely shaped rocks. If a fire has been burning, they will still be extremely hot. A person reaches into the furnace with a long metal rod that has a handle on one end and two pincers on the other. When the pincer end is over a clinker, he will twist the handle end, and the pincers will close, grasping the clinker. Then he can pull the hot clinker out of the furnace and drop it into a metal bucket. When I was a boy, we had a coal-fired furnace, so I had done this many times.

Gary showed me the switches to shut down the auger and the blowers. The blowers blow air through the furnace to make the fire hotter and, in turn, put more heat into the building. It took a little practice to properly grasp the clinkers, but I quickly had the hang of it and soon had the furnace clean. I then restarted the auger and the blowers.

After I had done this by myself for a few days, I decided it was time to teach my six-year-old son. I hoped he would learn community service by following my example.

He was fascinated as we went down into the old furnace room. Everything was new and exciting to him. I told him our first job was to rake coal to the auger. I turned to grab a rake, and when I turned back, he was nowhere to be seen. I called his name, and he answered, calling back to me from the coal bin. We weren’t actually supposed to climb into the coal bin. We just reached over the short wall and pulled the coal down. By the time I got him out, both he and I were black from one end to the other with coal dust, and I knew my wife wouldn’t be happy.

Next came the clinkers. I shut off the switch to the coal auger and pulled the handle down to shut off the blowers. My son intently watched the whole process. I then opened the furnace door and reached in to grab a clinker. As I did, I explained what I was doing.

“Once I reach this into the furnace,” I said, “I turn the handle to grab a clinker,”

When I said “turn the handle,” my son thought I was telling him to do something. But the only handle he could see was the one that turned on the blower fans. So, wanting to be helpful, he turned them on. When the air from the fans hit the inside of the furnace, a ball of fire shot toward me. Before I could extract myself, the fire, exacerbated by the coal dust all over me, took my eyebrows and most of my hair.

As my thoughts returned and Richard grinned, waiting for my reply, I managed a weak smile and simply said, “It’s the look that comes from teaching a child about service.”

Hinshaw described a long family lineage of teachers, including her mother, grandmother and great-grandmothers who both taught in a one room school house.

“I hear it’s kind of in the blood,” she said. “It’s one of those professions that’s inherited ... I never really thought about doing anything else.”

While at university, Hinshaw said she had toyed with the idea of pursuing a career in nursing, but only briefly.

“Nothing spoke to me like the idea of teaching,” she said.

After completing her degree at San Jose State University, Hinshaw wasted no time and jumped right in to her career.

“(I) graduated from San Jose State in four years, went back, got my credential and I was in the classroom by the time I was 23 years old,” she said.

The alumna of Prospect High School considers herself truly part of the “Panther family.” Hinshaw said returning to her alma mater as a teacher is not without its challenges, but she hopes to pass on her love of literature to her fellow Panthers.

“It’s really cool,” Hinshaw said, “what I learn from (my students) too and how they’re helping to sort of define who I am.”

Hinshaw aims to improve her classroom environment and lesson plans each year that she teaches. For her, building relationships with her students is most important. She reflected on a quote by writer and civil rights activist Maya Angelou.

“I’ve learned that people will forget what you said, people will forget what you did, but people will never forget how you made them feel,” the quote reads.

These words inspire Hinshaw in her teaching endeavors.

“You get out of it what you put in to it,” she said, “so I try to put in the joy so I can get out the joy.”

Immortality?

by Doc Haliday

Would you like to live forever; disease free? I never thought that I was mortal until I was seventeen years old. Some humans have dreamed of this possibility, and I was one of them. Reality has slapped me in the face! One of the most notable wishes to “live forever” was made by the Pharaohs of Egypt. The techniques they used were extraordinarily good for that time period. You can still witness their efforts today.

Benjamin Franklin expressed sorrow in 1773 that he lived “in a century too little advanced, and too near the infancy of science” that he could not be preserved and revitalized to achieve his “very ardent desire to see and observe the state of America a hundred years hence.”

In 1922, Alexander Yaroslavsky, a member of the Russian immortalists-biochemists movement wrote the “Anabiosys Poem.” In 1924, Soviet Communists considered freezing Vladimir Lenin’s body. While freezing will preserve a body, there is no way to accomplish this procedure with current technology without damaging the body.

In 1962, Michigan college physics teacher Robert Ettinger proposed that freezing people may be a way to preserve them until future medical technology could be used to cure them. He made the proposal in a privately published book, The Prospect of Immortality. Even though freezing a person is apparently fatal, Mr. Ettinger postulated that what appears to be fatal today may be reversible in the future.

In 1964, Evan Cooper founded the Life Extension Society (LES) in order to promote freezing people for the purpose of reviving then later. In 1965, the Life Extension Society offered the opportunity to preserve one person free of all charges, stating that “the Life Extension Society now has primitive facilities for emergency short term freezing and storing our friend the large homeotherm (man). LES offers to freeze free of charge the first person desirous and in need of cryogenic suspension.”

Dr. James Hiram Bedford, a psychology professor, grabbed the opportunity and was established as their candidate. Dr. Bedford suffered from kidney cancer that later metastasized into his lungs. At that time, his condition was untreatable. Fifty years ago, on January 12, 1967, Dr. Bedford became the first person to undergo cryonic preservation with the intent of future resuscitation. He was seventy-three years old at the time of his death. Dr. Bedford left $100,000 to cryonics research by means of a trust established by his will.

Cryonics is defined as the low-temperature preservation of humans who cannot be sustained by contemporary medicine, with the hope that their resuscitation and restoration to full health may be possible in the future.

Dr. Bedford’s body was frozen a few hours after his death, which was due to natural causes related to his cancer. Cryonics Society of California (CSC), which was headed by Robert Nelson, actually did this first human freezing under cryonics-controlled (non-mortuary) conditions. His body was maintained in liquid nitrogen, first by his family and with several transfers, it is now at The Alcor Life Extension Foundation, most often referred to as Alcor, where it still lies frozen today.

Over the next year and a half, Nelson froze four others who were kept in dry ice at a mortuary. It appears from court documents that he quietly let the four bodies at Chatsworth thaw, not later than around the end of 1971. Nelson’s freezing operations ended with the thawing of two bodies in April of 1979. In total, there were nine frozen people stored, thawed, and decomposed at the Chatsworth site by Nelson. Chatsworth became a byword for disaster in cryonics, and Nelson was castigated as a liar, cheat, and even called a mass-murderer by some in cryonics. Others in the industry viewed him and his meagerly-funded operation more sympathetically.

It has been reported that about 250 humans are currently cryopreserved in this country. There are also about 1,500 other people who have completed provisions for this procedure. Most of both groups are with Alcor, along with a few dozen pets. No human has yet been restored after being cryonically preserved. I will note that some people have been restored to normal functioning after being completely submerged in cold water for more than an hour.

Elaine's Real Estate Corner

by Elaine Motekaitis

We are all too familiar with the real estate phrase “location, location, location” that is paramount when purchasing or selling a home.

Of equal status is the following three words “disclosure, disclosure, disclosure!” As an example, we know that it is standard practice to give a home a fresh coat of paint before placing it on the market. Nine out of ten times, the intention is to show the home at its very best. But every so often, a seller paints the home with the intent of covering something up.

What is a disclosure?

Today when selling a home, there are documents known as disclosures that are intended for the purchaser to learn as much as they can about the property and the seller’s experience in it. This is an extremely important aspect of selling or buying property. Seller disclosures are very detailed, ranging from knowledge of leaky windows, to perhaps work done on the home without the needed permits, major construction, or information about the neighborhood. This is also an opportunity for the seller to disclose any negativity that can impact the value of the property, its usefulness or enjoyment. These types of disclosures can certainly protect the seller from future legal action.

How does a seller make a disclosure?

California has some of the most stringent disclosure requirements. The law requires that the seller and their agent complete a multitude of disclosure forms, such as a Natural Hazard Disclosure State, Local and State Transfer Disclosure Statements, Advisories about Market Conditions, and, yes, Megan Law Disclosures.

Disclosures typically come in the form of boilerplate documents where the sellers answer a series of questions, usually yes or no, about their home and their experiences while living there. Also, sellers must provide any documented communication among neighbors, previous owners, the seller or the agents, about a substantial defect or item that could cause an adverse impact on value. In this business it is always best to be on the side of caution to over disclose. If you know it, put it out there. If you try to hide something, it can come back to haunt you in the form of an expensive law suit.

What do sellers disclose to potential buyers?

It is the responsibility of the seller to disclose previous improvements, upgrades to the property and if a permit was requirement whether the work was done with or without permits.

It is the buyer’s responsibility to cross check with the city regarding building permits and zoning reports. Work completed without a permit could possibly not be done to code, and therefore could result in a fire or health hazard.

Some of the other issues include the existence of pets, termite problems, neighborhood nuisances, property line disputes, defects or problems with major systems or appliances. Also, there is the disclosure of bankruptcy and/or liens on the property

A disclosure is not the same as an inspection.

A disclosure is given to the buyer by the seller documenting their knowledge of the property. An inspection is done by a licensed contractor who exams the property and may reveal defects that were unknown to the seller. An inspector checks all systems and components including attached garages and decks. A written report is also a part of the disclosure package. Also, it is wise to have a termite, roof and possibly a chimney report to complete the inspection disclosure package. In the interest of having a full disclosure, the seller may have this done before placing the home on the market.

How does a perspective buyer receive disclosure packages?

Smart sellers have the packages available to buyers when their home goes on the market. Therefore, buyers are informed and know everything they need to know before they decide to make an offer. This saves time and hassle and prevents deals from falling apart once they are in escrow.

Buyers need to sign off on all disclosures and reports. It is important to carefully read and ask questions.

Disclosures are an immense help to both sellers and buyers. By providing this information, it gives buyers a sense of comfort and peace of mind, and helps alleviate the old adage of ‘buyer beware!’

Beach Blanket Babylon

It seems “Beach Blanket Babylon” never runs out of steam or ideas as it is constantly changing as the news changes in our world. I saw this show in September and I was expecting to see the same show during the holiday season, but I was greatly surprised to see that it had changed considerably. I had not seen the holiday version in many years so I loved the singing and dancing Christmas trees which are added to the current show. They still use our favorite characters such as Glinda, Mr. Peanut Man, and of course, all the political people, but there seems to some new pop icons and politicians added. Both Tammy Nelson, who is local and commutes to do the show, and Renee Lubin are still the audience favorites. Ms. Nelson always finds a way to include me in the show, which is a treat for me. The major plot of the show is Snow White looking for love and her travels along the way to find it. She has many adventures along the way, much like to Dorothy on her way to Oz. The show has been running now for forty-two years and probably will run another forty-two as the performance I attended by C. Michael Traw was completely sold out, despite the face that it was a Wednesday night. This is a must see theatrical treat and is appropriate for all ages; it is the perfect tourist attraction for any guests that you may want to take to San Francisco and want to give a special experience. Dealing With Class Complaints

by Daris Howard

In our university math department, when it comes to choosing classes to teach, we do it on a rotation system. Starting with the person at the top of the list, everyone chooses one class. Then we start over at the top of the list again, with each person choosing their second one. We continue this process until everyone has their full teaching assignment. Then, the person at the top of the list rotates to the bottom for the next semester.

I had just rotated to the bottom of the list, so it wasn’t a surprise that, by the time we got to my fourth choice, the only class left for me was the one nobody really liked to teach. It consisted almost entirely of girls who were planning to become elementary school teachers, and if they hated anything, it was math.

I had taught the class before, and endured the never ending whining. “Why do we have to learn this stupid stuff?”

Often, the girls would come into my office in tears, complaining about how hard the math was, suggesting that I was mean to be making them learn it. I have a hard time dealing with a young lady’s tears, even if the real reason for them is actually their lack of diligence.

However, over the years, I noticed that my female colleagues not only handled the girls’ tears better, but had less complaining as well. So I went to one of them and asked for advice. She smiled and explained how she used a pretest to head off complaints in the beginning.

Thus, on the first day of class, I arrived at the classroom armed with a take-home exam. It had 50 questions, could be done open book, and it wouldn’t count for very many points. I introduced it by saying that it was an overview of all of the material we would be covering through the semester, and would help both them and me see what they knew.

As they looked through it, they complained loudly. They felt it was too hard, too much work, and not fair to expect on the first day. But, if the complaints were loud then, they were nothing in comparison to what happened at the next class period when it was due.

“I went through the book looking for those questions, and I couldn’t find them,” one girl complained. “I figured if I could find the questions I could find the answer in the back and figure them out.”

“The exact questions aren’t there,” I replied, “but the concepts are.”

“Well, I don’t know why you are wasting our time on this stupid stuff,” one girl said defiantly. “I plan to teach grade school, not teach math.”

All of the other girls added their agreement, and their tone rose almost to that of rebellion, just as my colleague said it would.

“What grades will you teach in grade school?” I asked.

“First through sixth,” came the reply.

“Do you think you will teach any math in those grades?”

“Only simple add and subtract stuff,” one young lady said in a caustic tone.

“Really?” I asked.

“Yes, really!” she said, and everyone agreed with her.

That was when I revealed something to them. “I told you I didn’t take the questions from your text book. That is because they came from the fifth grade math text used at the local grade school—the stuff you very likely will be teaching.”

Suddenly, the room went very still as I continued. “Our goal is to help you understand this material so that when you step in front of the students, you can teach with confidence.”

Finally, one timid voice spoke from the back. “Perhaps it would be good if we learned it.”

And, though the complaints never fully ended, we moved forward with far fewer than ever before.

I am prepared to be your purr-fect companion for life. Can we talk?

Hey there! My name is Angel. I am quite the love bug and definitely live up to my name—I am super sweet and small but mighty (cute that is)! I enjoy gazing out the window and spending time with my human companions. Please ask about me today!

You can find these court forms and more information at the California Courts Online Self-Help Center (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp), your county law library, or the courthouse nearest you. If you cannot pay the filing fee, ask the court clerk for a fee waiver form. If you do not file your response on time, you may lose the case by default, and your wages, money, and property may be taken without further warning from the court.

There are other legal requirements. You may want to call an attorney right away. If you do not know an attorney, you may want to call an attorney referral service. If you cannot afford an attorney, you may be eligible for free legal services from a nonprofit legal services program. You can locate these nonprofit groups at the California Legal Services Web site (www.lawhelpcalifornia.org), the California Courts Online Self-Help Center (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp), or by contacting your local court or county bar association. NOTE: the court has a statutory lien for waived fees and costs on any settlement or arbitration award of $10,000 or more in a civil case. The court’s lien must be paid before the court will dismiss the case. ¡AVISO! Lo han demandado. Si no responde dentro de 30 días, la corte puede decidir en su contra sin escuchar su versión. Lea le información a continuación.

Tiene 30 DÍAS DE CALENDARIO después de que le entreguen esta citación y papeles legales para presentar una respuesta por escrito en esta corte y hacer que se entregue una copia al demandante. Si no puede pagar la cuota de presentación, pida al secretario de la corte que le dé un formulario de exención de pago de cuotas. Si no presenta su respuesta a tiempo, puede perder el caso por incumplimiento y la corte le podrá quitar su sueldo, dinero y bienes sin más advertencia.

Hay otros requisitos legales. Es recomendable que llame a un abogado inmediatamente. Si no conoce a un abogado, puede llamar a un servicio de remisión a abogados. Si no puede pagar a un abogado, es posible que cumpla con los requisitos para obtener servicios legales gratuitos de un programa de servicios legales sin fines de lucro. Puede encontrar estos grupos sin fines de lucro en el sitio web de California Legal Services, (www.lawhelpcalifornia.org), en el Centro de Ayuda de las Cortes de California, (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp/español/) o poniéndose en contacto con la corte o el colegio de abogados locales. AVISO: Por ley, la corte tiene derecho a reclamar las cuotas y los costos exentos por imponer un gravamen sobre cualquier recuperación de $10,000 ó más de valor recibida mediante un acuerdo o una concesión de arbitraje en un caso de derecho civil. NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: DAVID MARTIN DONNELLY CASE NO. 16PR180131
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL, or estate, or both of DAVID MARTIN DONNELLY.
A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by JENNIFER ERIN JENNINGS in the Superior Court of California, County of SANTA CLARA.
THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that JENNIFER ERIN JENNINGS be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act . (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.)
The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 03/08/17 at 9:00AM in Dept. 10 located at 191 NORTH FIRST ST., SAN JOSE, CA 95113
IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.
Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.
YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.
